COPS REQUIEM

Michel Tourscher

The book behind the Netflix event film 2025, where justice is a dark and dangerous quest, where every truth uncovered can cost lives.

For ex-policeman and private detective Lucas, the case was simple. Find Serge Vasseur, a psychiatric patient who had escaped from the clinic where he was committed and a captain in the anti-gang squad of the Paris police. When colleagues of a fugitive fall victim to a mysterious killer, Lucas must search for him as he becomes a target.

Cops Requiem is a gripping thriller exploring themes of justice, redemption and the price of truth.

THE FORGOTTEN GATE

Liv Bonelli

A thrilling, harrowing thriller that explores the depths of human psychology. A diabolical plot in which the reader suspects each character in turn...

In a squalid little room in London's East End, the horribly mutilated body of a young woman is found. The victim, nicknamed Quinze, had left a farewell letter... To solve this macabre staging, soon followed by other murders with the same MO, Lieutenant Garrett has no choice but to call in his former teammate, Meredith Even.

The profiler, renowned for her unconventional expertise in infiltrating the minds of deviants, must recover from the investigation that stole her legs; all the while, she struggles with the Machiavellian web that a shadow is weaving around her and her team, sowing suspicion and death.

DISAPPEARING

Nicolas Nutten

When the loss of all your bearings leads you to the edge of the abyss, how far will you go to discover the truth?

Paris July 31, 2018.

The heatwave has turned the capital into a furnace and the metro corridors into an oven.

An incident on line 1 forced a train to make an emergency stop between two stations, trapping dozens of passengers. When the passengers were evacuated, Célia never reached the platform of the next station.

She seems to have vanished into the darkness of the tunnels. Despite the few clues at his disposal, his companion Maxime sets off in search of her in a hellish race where secrets and doubts lead him into a macabre and dangerous universe...

THE CURSE OF REGGIO

Rosalie Lowie

A new investigation by Marcus Kubiak mixing vendetta and revelations between the Opal Coast and Italian Calabria.

Police officer Marcus Kubiak and intrepid journalist Zoé Rousseau are back in Wimereux after the tragic events of last summer. Just as the young couple are hoping for some peace and quiet after the murderous summer, two child kidnappings once again rock the Opal Coast. As the investigation progresses, Marcus discovers that the kidnappings may have something to do with the uprising in Reggio Calabria, site of the famous Italian uprising in the 1970s, and may also have something to do with Jack Cappelle's ill-fated return...

Between macabre discoveries and family revenge, Marcus and Zoé face an extraordinary case.

MICHAEL FENRIS

Michael Fenris is a general practitioner by day and a writer by night. He lives near Paris and is passionate about American literature. Inspired by Lost, he plays with the codes of the series to better grip his readers. His incisive, realistic style creates breathless suspense, playing on the ambiguity between reality and fantasy, to give free rein to the reader's imagination.

He is the author of 4 thrillers published by Éditions Prisma, including Feuilles (2015) and Thérianthrope, and has a large following of fans on the web.

A trusted author with a highly effective pen, he has been a regular since his debut with Éditions Prisma.

DEVIATION

Michael Fenris

An ordinary bus with a handful of strangers enters a tunnel... and suddenly everything changes: the boundaries between rationality and reality are blurred, and life goes out of control as the passengers seem to go round in circles in an endless space. In a tunnel, how could they miss the exit? Trapped by this distortion of reality, the disoriented travelers are then attacked by unusually large and particularly aggressive coyotes.

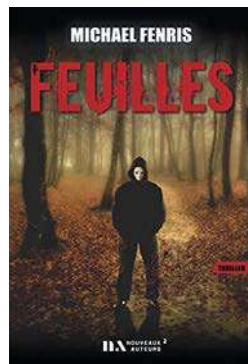

A fantastic thriller that revisits the werewolf myth, with an incredibly well-mastered plot! With a hint of Lost, the author plays with the codes of the series to grab readers' attention.

Life in blue

Théo Lemattre

Clarence is a bright, dynamic young executive who lives and breathes her job. Her company, aptly named Dépression & Cie, works in secret on behalf of major pharmaceutical companies to encourage people to take more psychotropic drugs. Ambitious and cynical, Clarence sees a wonderful opportunity for promotion when the file of Étienne, a modest florist who's very happy in life, lands on her desk. Her mission: simply to get him to get depressed. She thinks she's going to make mincemeat of the smooth, gentle young man, but her mission doesn't turn out at all as she'd hoped. As they get to know each other, each turns out to be more complex than expected.

Who will prevail? Beneath its funny, tender romantic comedy exterior, sprinkled with black humor, this deeper-than-it-seems novel puts a word in for a sometimes serious spleen.

Chedli Ben Hassine

A masterful first horror novel, with a gallery of strong, self-doubting characters. The author denounces old, archaic fears while sending shivers down your spine.

Alexis, a dreamy boy enrolled in business school and bored at home by his overbearing father, spends a lot of time trying to escape his daily routine. His main dream is to become a painter, and every Wednesday he attends an art class. But this bubble of freedom soon turns into a nightmare. A mysterious creature with a ghostly and terrifying shape appears to him: the 'Bouloulou'. This jinn from the Arab world seems to sow death and terror, and Alexis is convinced that this evil entity is the same one that used to terrorise him at night when he was a child and afraid of the dark. Alexis soon feels a malevolent presence around him.

DU SANG DANS L'EAU SALÉE

Nelly Jauneau

A la pointe Finistère, là où la mer et la terre fusionnent, dans le tourbillon des forces de la nature, un homme trace un sillage sanglant sur le fil d'une épée volée. De retour chez elle, Alys découvre le corps décapité d'un prêtre.

Quand bruissent les ailes des libellules

Marc Laine

Le corps mutilé d'un adolescent est retrouvé dans la citadelle d'Arras, alors qu'il n'y a aucune raison pour qu'il soit venu à cet endroit de son plein gré. Mickaël, Natsumi et Simon, flics à la DIPJ de Lille, sont amenés à enquêter sur ce crime, qui n'est malheureusement que le premier d'une atroce série...

Les jeunes victimes sont massacrées dans des lieux remplis d'histoire, et le trio devra découvrir ce qui se cache derrière une telle mise en scène. Cette investigation périlleuse les mènera très loin, dans les contreforts de Briançon.
